Chris brings over 25 years of leading effective teams, forming dynamic leaders, and cultivating healthy organizations. He has worked with teams in Europe, Mexico, Haiti and across the US. He believes in the power and giftedness of the human person and helps leaders maximize human potential both for themselves and for their teams. Healthy team members thrive and healthy teams win. Chris teaches the certification class for the Six Types of Working Genius assessment.

Before The Table Group, Chris was a foreign missionary, non-profit executive, cultural entrepreneur and leadership consultant. After graduating from Notre Dame with a finance degree, Chris worked in financial management for a Fortune 500 company. Moved to answer the call to ministry, Chris left the corporate world and spent the next several years serving as the Youth Minister of his local church. Chris met his wife, Michelle through foreign missions and soon after, Chris and his family relocated abroad to begin work as a missionary family. Eventually returning back to the United States and settling in Georgia, Chris served as the Director of Camps and Missions for Life Teen. Under Chris' team-centered leadership, the summer camp program grew from 200 campers per summer to over 4,000 campers per summer. Chris used Pat Lencioni's book, The Advantage, to build cohesive teams aligned a common mission resulting in exponential growth.

Chris is committed to his faith, his family, and his mission. Chris and his wife Michelle are proud parents of four boys and two girls, two of whom were adopted from Haiti in 2011. Currently, Chris is the President of Greenhouse Collective, a non-profit committed to growing small faith communities and cultivating healthy family circles. He is inspired by Mother Theresa who said, "The problem with our world is that we draw the circle of family too small." Whether it is biological family, a group of neighbors, or an executive team, Chris works to build healthy teams who maximize their human potential to impact the world.
